1. Find the answer to the question raised in the lab1

1. Implement a simple word2vec algorithm for the DeepWalk (Attributes for each node should be created).

2. Use some libraries to solve a real problem

Answer

As you see in the papers, the goals of Word2vec fit the DeepWalk algorithm. Besides, in the original DeepWalk paper, the authors use SkipGram, which is implemented in the Word2vec library. Therefore, we could use a ready-made function to implement DeepWalk.

But in this lab, we will implement a simple Word2vec function.

Implement Word2vec

Learning embedding vectors done!

NOTE:

- First, we created the data randomly and illogically. As a result, the graph's structure is unreasonable, and the model could learn terrible things. However, the point of this task is to implement the code and see how it works, not considering the logic behind the data and the model's effectiveness.
- Second, when we test the model, we need to print the sentences to see what words appear in those sentences. If we test a word that is not in the sentences, the test will show nothing. The reasons are that a verticle goes to another verticle randomly, and the length of a walk could be short. Thus, we can't be sure that all words are covered in those sentences.
- Third, please try to change the "walk_length" and "num_walks." There will be some interesting phenomena because of the illogical data. These phenomena reveal that data plays a crucial role, and it needs to be pre-processed and analyzed before putting in any models.

Solve a real problem using some libraries

Goal: When we have a large graph dataset like the Facebook dataset below, we want to classify which company (node) will likely belong to a type of page. If we categorize well, we could apply marketing strategies in a domain on a company that we are surveying. Therefore, our task is to learn a model which can classify a company using related features.

1. Analyze and visualize the dataset Facebook downloaded in this website.
2. Use DeepWalk to embed the graph
3. Train a classifier to do the node classification task using the embedding graph from step 2.

You can do many things with the data. I recommend that you could try many tasks with this data, not only the classification task.

Read data

In [ ]: edges_path = 'facebook_edges.csv'
targets_path = 'facebook_target.csv'
features_path = 'facebook_features.json'
```

```
In [ ]: def show_info(df: pd.DataFrame):
```

```

print(df.describe())
print(df.info())
print(df.head())

Read data
edges = pd.read_csv(edges_path)
targets = pd.read_csv(targets_path)
targets.index = targets.id

show_info(edges)
show_info(targets)

with open(features_path) as json_data:
    features = json.load(json_data)
print("Features:", features)

The summaries above indicate that the data is clean and ready to use. Let's get features from the features file.

In [ ]:
max_feature = np.max([v for v_list in features.values() for v in v_list]) features_matrix = np.zeros(shape = (len(list(features.keys()))), max_feature+1

i = 0
for k, vs in tqdm(features.items()):
    for v in vs:
        features_matrix[i, v] = 1
    i+=1

Visualize datasets

Create a graph. If you want to use a smaller graph, you can try G1 and G2. It will be lighter when running the code.

In [ ]:
graph = nx.convert_matrix.from_pandas_edgelist(edges, "id_1", "id_2")

In [ ]:
subgraph_nodes1 = list(nx.dfs_preorder_nodes(graph, 10))[:150] #Gets 150 nodes
print(subgraph_nodes1)
G1 = graph.subgraph(subgraph_nodes1)
pos = nx.spring_layout(G1, seed=42)
nx.draw_networkx(G1, pos=pos, cmap='coolwarm')

Embedding graph using DeepWalk

If you want the code to run quicker, please use G1 or G2 instead of putting the whole graph in the walker. It will be a little bit trickier in processing data later but no worries.

In [ ]:
from karateclub.utils.walker import RandomWalker
from gensim.models.word2vec import Word2Vec walker = RandomWalker(walk_number = 10, walk_length = 80)
walker.do_walks(G2)
```

```
In [ ]:
model = Word2Vec(walker.walks, # previously generated walks
                  hs=1, # tells the model to use hierarchical softmax sg = 1, # tells the model to use skip-gram size=128, # size of the embedding window=5,
                  min_count=1,
                  workers=4,
                  seed=42)
```

```
In [ ]:
embeddings = model.wv.vectors
print('Shape of embedding matrix:', embeddings.shape)

Shape of embedding matrix: (150, 128)

Let's check the most similar nodes to a random node.

If you use the G1, please change subgraph_nodes2 to subgraph_nodes1.

If you use the whole graph, any ID can work. Would you mind trying it yourself?

In [ ]: similar_to = str(subgraph_nodes2[random.randint(0, len(subgraph_nodes2)-1)]) print("Similar to ID {}".format(similar_to)) model.wv.most_similar(similar_to) targets.loc[[int(similar_to)] + [int(v[0]) for v in model.wv.most_similar(similar_to)]]

Train a classifier

Train a classifier from the embedding graph to the target. Here we use the Random Forest classifier.

In [ ]: # Get targets
y = targets.loc[[int(i) for i in list(features.keys())], 'page_type'] print(y)
Get corresponding embeddings
X_dw = []
co_oc = []
for i in y.index:
    if str(i) in model.wv:
        X_dw.append(model.wv.__getitem__(str(i)))
        co_oc.append(i)

y = targets.loc[[i for i in co_oc], 'page_type']
```

X_train, X_test, y_train, y_test = train_test_split(X_dw, y, test_size=0.2) #

rf = RandomForestClassifier()
rf.fit(X_train, y_train)
y_pred = rf.predict(X_test)

print(f1_score(y_test, y_pred, average='micro')) print(confusion_matrix(y_test, y_pred, normalize='true'))
